COUNTY HOME AND INMATES ARE NOT SAFE FROM FIRE

Grand Jury Makes Recommendation For Larger Water Main To Mitigate Fire Hazard At County Home.

That there is inadequate protection from fire for the property and inmates of the Adams county home along the Harrisburg road was voiced by W. E. Kapp, of Biglerville, foreman of the April grand jury, when the jurors returned from a tour of the county jail and the county home on Monday.

The grand jurors came into the court room shortly before 4 o'clock, Monday afternoon, and Mr. Kapp at once made a verbal report of the jurors' findings on their tour of inspection. The foreman said everything was found to be satisfactory at the jail and that the grand jury had nothing to recommend to better conditions there.

"While everything was found to be clean and sanitary at the county home," Mr. Kapp continued, "I am expressing the opinion of the members of the grand jury when I say that there is inadequate protection against fire for the property and the inmates at the county home along the Harrisburg road."

Mr. Kapp said the Gettysburg fire company had made a test from the water plug in the yard at the county home and found the pressure insufficient to throw the water to the roof of even the lowest building on the premises. This condition, he said, was due to the small size of the main from the Carlisle street water artery to the almshouse plug. He said this main was but four inches in diameter, whereas he recommended that a six inch main be laid.

When Mr. Kapp had finished, Judge D. P. McPherson complimented the jurors upon their findings, adding that the clerk of the courts would be asked to transmit to the county board of poor directors the recommendation for a larger main.

He said also that it was the duty of the county to protect the inmates of the county home from any fire hazard, just as any individual would supply ample fire protection for his family.

Deputy Clerk of the Courts J. Robert Hartman was then asked by Judge McPherson to place the recommendation of the grand jury upon the records and give a copy of the recommendation to the directors of the poor.

Judge McPherson thanked the grand jurors for the manner in which they had transacted their duties at this term of court and excused them from further attendance.

SPEAKS ON DISARMAMENT

Dr. C. F. Sanders Makes Address At Cornerstone Laying of Harrisburg Lutheran Church.

Dr. Charles F. Sanders, professor of philosophy at Gettysburg College, made a plea for further disarmament of the military forces of the United States, in an address at the cornerstone laying of Christ Lutheran Church, Thirteenth and Thompson streets, Harrisburg, Sunday afternoon. His subject was "Christ, the Chief Cornerstone."

The Rev. Dr. Thomas Reisch is pastor of the congregation which is building a new edifice on the site of the first Christ Lutheran Church built 35 years ago.

INFANT DIES

Catherine Kuykendall, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Kuykendall, died at the home of her parents in Franklin township, Monday morning, aged 10 days. She is survived by her parents and the following brothers and sisters: Seymour, Joseph, Lola, Paul, Frank, Roy and Hilda.

Funeral services were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from her late home, conducted by Elder D. B. Wineman, of the Church of the Brethren. Interment at Mummasburg.

Sheldon Richardson Pleads Not Guilty and Is Acquitted

Starts Fight Lone-Handed Against Charge Of Setting Fire To Timberland On Jack's Mountain April 12; Evidence Largely Circumstantial; Jury Out 45 Minutes.

The web of circumstantial evidence woven by the State around Sheldon Richardson, 19-year-old Iron Springs youth, charged with "willfully, maliciously and negligently setting fire to woodland in Hamiltonban township," on Jack's Mountain in the western part of Adams county, was shattered when a jury late Monday afternoon returned a verdict acquitting Richardson.

The trial of Richardson was the first called in the criminal division at the April term of quarter sessions, which began Monday morning. The youth's case, however, did not get under way until after the noon recess.

Lone-handed, Richardson began his fight of the charge laid against him on which the April grand jury found a true bill earlier in the day. He appeared in court without counsel and in a firm tone of voice entered a plea of not guilty when asked by President Judge D. P. McPherson for his decision on the indictments.

Trial of the case was then delayed somewhat as a court messenger was dispatched to find an attorney to defend the youth. Robert E. Wible, Esq., United States Commissioner for Adams county, was secured and the trial proceeded.

Little time was spent on the selection of twelve jurors to hear the testimony and the following were allowed to remain in the jury box without challenge: James Ross, Frank Martin, Clayton Bucher, F. R. Culp, J. E. C. Miller, George A. Carbaugh, D. A. Peters, George C. Sheaffer, Samuel Rhine, Ira Biesecker, Paul F. Wolf and George E. Plontz.

The Commonwealth, led by John P. Butt, the district attorney, endeavored to establish its case against Richardson by three witnesses. They were Andy Reese, Percy Smith and Harry Thomas, the latter a State fire warden and prosecutor in the case. Most of the testimony of these three witnesses were circumstantial as it affected the alleged act charged against Richardson.

Percy Smith and Andy Reese were the only witnesses who could give any facts bearing on the origin of the forest fire, which burned over between 60 and 75 acres of timberland before being extinguished, and their testimony was only of a circumstanial nature.

It was testified that Smith, in company with Richardson, had set out on a journey across the mountains on the morning of April 12; that they had stopped at a hollow white oak tree, where they each lit a cigarette from a match furnished by Richardson; that after their cigarettes were lit Richardson either tossed or placed the burning match in a pile of dry leaves, and that both boys had extinguished this blaze before it gained headway.

Smith said he went on ahead of Richardson and that the latter remained behind a short time. It was during the interval that Smith left and the time Richardson caught up with him on their journey that the State endeavored to prove the fire had been started by Richardson.

A statement which Richardson is said to have later made to Reese was also considered by the Commonwealth as evidence out of the web of circumstances. It was to the effect that Richardson had told Reese he had started a fire. Reese construed this remark as meaning that he had set fire to the woodland, but Richardson on the stand said he was referring to the little blaze which resulted from his throwing the match, from which he and Smith had lit their cigarettes, into the leaves and which had been extinguished by the two boys.

Richardson, who was the only witness in his own behalf, denied all of the allegations made by witnesses for the Commonwealth. He was positive he had followed Smith from the white oak tree almost immediately and that before leaving the spot he had not lit another match. Under the fire of cross-examination, his story remained unchanged.

After brief addresses to the jury by Attorney Wible and District Attorney Butt and after the address of President Judge McPherson to the jurors, that body retired for its deliberations at 4 o'clock and returned with its verdict forty-five minutes later. Costs were placed on the county.

After Richardson's case had been disposed of, it was stated that there would be no more criminal trials at the April term and witnesses subpoenaed for other trials were excused from further attendance at this term of court.

A number of defendants have entered pleas of guilty and nolo contendere and will appear before Judge McPherson on Saturday for sentence.

BAND FUND DRIVE GETS UNDER WAY

Merchants Display Cards in Windows, Showing Which Are Donors to Fund.

"We Have Contributed to the Citizens' Band Fund. Have You?" These cards appeared in several down-town windows Monday.

Collection of funds for the Gettysburg Citizens' Band, which is reorganizing and expanding in the interests of better music for Gettysburg, was begun on Monday when a few of the down-town merchants were solicited for subscriptions. Cordial response was met with by the solicitors everywhere, according to the president of the band, George Hughes.

Canvassing for funds will be conducted, for the present, by George Hughes, George Gouker, leader, Charles Cook and George Hamme.

Merchants who have contributed to funds to help the band grow are given cards to place in the window, according to Mr. Hughes. These state that the firm or proprietor has contributed to the Citizens' Band Fund.

Members of the committee on subscriptions have issued a call for the necessary funds for the band, stating that all who do not wish to be called upon for contributions may leave their donation, of any amount, large or small, with Walter M. Plank, of the Electro-Mechanical Company, southeast corner of Center Square.

ASPERS TO ORGANIZE COMPANY PERMANENTLY

Members of the Gettysburg Fire Company will go to Aspers Wednesday evening to help effect a permanent organization of the fire company recently organized there. The local firemen will meet at the engine house, leaving at 7:30 o'clock. Election of officers, adoption of a constitution and by-laws and other business in connection with organizing the company permanently will be transacted. The meeting will be held in the office of the Penn Tile works.

LITTLE CHANGE IN OFFICIAL COUNT

Grover C. Myers Increases Majority Over Elmer B. Lau to 25.

An additional vote for Grover C. Myers, Gardners, bringing his majority over Elmer B. Lau, East Berlin, for the Democratic nomination as State Assemblyman from Adams county, to 25, was one of the few changes made in the official count of the ballots cast in last Tuesday's spring primary in Adams county.

The official computation was certified to the Secretary of the Commonwealth Monday afternoon by Raymond E. Deardorff, clerk to the county commissioners, who, with the help of two additional clerks, made the official count.

The figures in the State Assemblyman fight are Lau, 1,056; Myers, 1,081. Myers is the incumbent. His Republican opponent next fall will be Harry C. Stock, of New Oxford, who had no opposition at the primaries.

The official count in the contest for delegate positions in the national convention is: Gitt, 450; Gerry, 135; Gross, 315; Dougherty, 1,499; Trattner, 174; Logan, 127; Park, 150.

The majority of Norman L. Bonbrake, of Chambersburg, candidate for the nomination as State Senator from the Adams-Franklin district, over his opponent, D. Edward Long, also of Chambersburg, is 206, by the official count, the vote standing, Bonbrake, 1,087; Long, 881.

19 NEW HOUSES IN GROUP

In connection with the extensive spring building program in Gettysburg, as announced in detail in The Times yesterday, nineteen new houses are either in course of erection or have been completed within the last two years in two adjoining squares in the north end of town, a resident of that community states. These new residences, most of them of a very substantial nature, are on Lincoln Avenue East, between Carlisle street and Stratton street and on the west side of Stratton street between Lincoln Avenue East (Harrisburg Road) and Stevens street.

MAJOR NIXON TO LEAVE SERVICE

Quits Army at Own Request After 20 Years Of Service.

WILL GO INTO BUSINESS

Has Built up College R. O. T. C. and Established Chapter of Scabbard and Blade There; To Leave May 1.

At his own request, Major Courtland Nixon, veteran United States Army man and commandant of the Gettysburg College Reserve Officers' Training Corps for the past three years, will be relieved from active duty Wednesday, after having served Uncle Sam for 20 years.

Major Nixon will go into business, the nature of which he did not disclose before leaving for New York on Monday.

After graduating from Princeton University, Major Nixon passed a competitive examination for entrance into the United States Army. Beginning at the rank of second lieutenant of infantry, the lowest commissioned grade in the Army, he worked himself up to the rank of colonel which he held while in France with the American Expeditionary Forces during the World War.

Cuba, Philippines and Panama were posts where Major Nixon served during his service with the Army. At the last named place, he served six years, having been "loaned" to Panama during the construction of the Panama Canal.

Under an act of Congress which permitted officers serving a certain length of time in Panama to retire, Major Nixon left the service for a short time, but returned to active service with the outbreak of hostilities in the World War. While overseas almost a year, he was with the 83rd Division, first as a lieutenant colonel and later as colonel. While in France he was assistant tactical staff officer.

Major Nixon came to Gettysburg College three years ago, after Captain Tuttle had been relieved as commandant of the local unit of the R. O. T. C. When he first came, Major Nixon found the unit in danger of being disbanded because of the lack of interest shown by the students and the College faculty.

By his untiring efforts, according to persons who have been close to him in the reorganization of the College military unit, he has built up the personnel of the officers training corps from less than 100 to 200.

It was also through his efforts and by his sponsoring that a chapter of the Scabbard and Blade, the national military fraternity, was established at Gettysburg College, chapters of that fraternity seldom being estab-

LITTLE TOT DRINKS 1½ OUNCES OF IODINE

Prompt Action of Local Physician in Removing Poison Saves Girl's Life.

Prompt action on the part of a local physician probably saved the life of little Louise Wagner, 3-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wagner, Railroad street, Monday evening. Shortly before 8:30 o'clock, a brother of the little girl found a bottle of iodine on a shelf and gave it to his sister, who drank the contents.

About one and one-half ounces of iodine were in the bottle and the little girl drained the vial. The parents of the little girl learned of her act almost immediately after she had swallowed the poisonous fluid and notified a physician, who responded at once.

The poisonous iodine was taken from the little girl's stomach, before it had an opportunity to get into her system. Had the poison got into the girl's system, death would probably have followed. As it was, she suffered no ill consequences from the iodine.

ON FEDERAL JURY

Marshall A. Eck, Chambersburg street, Gettysburg, is the only Adams county man called for service on the petit jury at the May term of United States court for the middle district of Pennsylvania which opens at Harrisburg May 5 with Judge Charles B. Witmen presiding. There are no Adams county criminal cases scheduled for trial.

STEER FEEDERS WILL MAKE TOUR

Itinerary Through County on Thursday, May 1, Is Announced by Association.

Members of the Adams County Livestock Association have planned a steer-feeders' tour, in which all steer-feeders, livestock buyers and persons interested in the industry are invited to participate. The tour is to be held on Thursday, May 1, and will meet at the Court Huose here at noon of that day, leaving from there in a body.

F. A. Waybright, secretary of the Association, will first lead the tour to his own farm, where he is feeding sixteen head of cattle. From this place the party will go to Walter Shuemaker's place, where 15 head are being fed; then to Oliver Waybright, where 19 head are feeding; to J. Paxton Bigham, with 12 head; Frank Drais, 30 head; I. O. Biesecker, 10 head; E. C. Biesecker, 10 head; John Biesecker, 10 head; G. M. Bucher, 25 head.

Sheely Brothers, 116 head; Deardorff Brothers, 25 head; R. H. Shull, 28 head; Harry Snyder, 20 head; David Brown, 12 head.

It is stated that the results of the feeding program are apparent on all farms of the county, and it is anticipated that the final results will fully equal those of last year, when Adams county feeders were cited by the State department of agriculture for their successful methods in steer-feeding. Buyers, it is said, are already interested in the cattle which will be thrown on the market within a short time.

LIONS PLAN FOR CHARTER NIGHT

Tentative Date For Affair Is Set For Friday Evening, May 16.

Gettysburg's den of Lion cubs, brought into being two months ago, wil become a full-fledged coterie when its charter from Lions' International will be presented to it, the tentative date having been set Monday evening at the weekly luncheon for Friday evening, May 16.

At a meeting of the committee on arrangements for the charter night affair which followed the luncheon served at the Hotel Gettysburg, it was decided to make the charter presentation night a notable function in the history of the club. Invitations to attend will be extended members of Lions' Clubs in Hagerstown, Frederick, Harrisburg, York, Dallastown, Red Lion and Lancaster. With the visitors, in the neighborhood of 150 persons are expected.

The charter for the local club will be presented at a banquet to be served at the Hotel Gettysburg. The district governor will present the charter and it will be accepted by J. Donald Swope, Esq., president of the den. Short addresses are to be on the program, as well as musical numbers by well-known local artists.

Following the banquet, the College Serenaders will furnish music for dancing for those who care for that form of entertainment, while tables will be set for card players. Favors are to be given the Lions' ladies and stunts and novel features will help to enliven the occasion.

Will Attend Church

An invitation to attend Trinity Reformed Church in a body was accepted on behalf of the club by John W. Brehm, vice president, who presided at Monday evening's luncheon in the absence of President Swope. The Lions will attend the evening service on Sunday, May 11, Mothers' Day. The invitation was extended by the Rev. N. L. Horn, a member of the

DISCUSSES BOY PROBLEM

Boy training, its problems and the opportunities to guide the youth of today into proper channels through the Boy Scout movement were discussed by Dr. R. O. Stoops, superintendent of the public schools of York, at the regular weekly luncheon of the Gettysburg Rotary Club at the Hoffman Hotel Monday evening.

This is Boys' Week in the nation, a movement fostered by Rotary International, and the meeting of the local club Monday evening was intended to inspire new ideas to help develop the boys of this community. Special boys' songs, written to popular airs, were arranged by A. B. Plank, Rotary song leader, and sung by the club.

"If every red-blooded man is not interested in boys, there is no hope for him," Doctor Stoops asserted. He traced the development of the boy from birth to manhood, emphasizing the various stages of development through which every youngster must pass.

MISSIONARIES MEET ON MAY 8

Adams County Conference Sessions Held This Year at New Oxford.

ELABORATE PROGRAM SET

Mrs. W. J. Smyser, of York, and Miss Tilda Nelson, of Washington, D. C., Are Principal Speakers.

WIFE POISONER TO PLEAD INSANE

Barring, a Prisoner, Charged With Placing Disease Germs in Food.

WILL OPPOSE BAIL PLEA

"Another Woman" Is Revealed in Case of Intrigue and Domestic Difficulties in Chemist's Home.

(By Associated Press.)

White Plains, N. Y., Apr. 29.—Attorneys for C. O. Barring, wealthy chemist and manufacturer, who was indicted by a grand jury yesterday after witnesses testified he attempted to kill his wife by mixing poison and typhus, scarlet fever, pneumonia and diphtheria germs with her food, today planned to seek his release on bail. The district attorney will oppose their efforts.

Barring, in a highly nervous condition, is watched by special guards posted outside his cell. Three indictments charging attempted murder, food poisoning and assault were returned after his wife, who is seven years his senior, and a number of other witnesses had told a story of intrigue, domestic difficulties and "another woman," which ended, they charged, in a five months' series of efforts by Barring to poison his wife.

In a statement made shortly after his arrest Barring was said to have admitted he had mixed the germs in his wife's food and also administered arsenic but denied he intended to kill her. He merely desired to make her so ill, he is alleged to have related, that she would let him accompany her to California, where she could recuperate and he would free himself of "the other woman."

Barring's mother indicated today that her son's defense would be that of insanity.

DAMAGE SUIT IS HEARD BY JURY

Case Growing Out of Collision on August 14, 1921, Comes Into Court.

Three witnesses for the plaintiff had testified and a fourth was on the stand this afternoon at 2 o'clock in the suit for damages brought by Morris Cafritz, of Washington, against Walter Craumer, of Abbottstown, growing out of a collision between their respective machines near Waynesboro on August 14, 1921.

Witnesses, who had testified before the noon recess, were D. J. Strine, Ernest R. Post, William I. Shields. Sergeant Kauffman, of the State Police, was on the stand at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

The jurors hearing evidence in the action, the first of three civil suits to be tried at the present term of court, are Emory J. Trostle, William J. Fohl, E. T. Flickinger, Charles Strasbaugh, Roy A. Mickley, Lewis Krichten, John Bittinger, Wilson Hummelbaugh, Peter J. Decker, S. A. Culberson, George Hartman and R. A. Thompson.

Two additional juries were drawn to try two cases, one on Wednesday and the other on Thursday of this week, after which President Judge D. P. McPherson excused other jurors from further attendance at this session of court.

Mr. Newman, an attorney from Washington, D. C., assisted William Hersh, Esq., of Gettysburg, in handling the case for the plaintiff, while J. Donald Swope, Esq., and Charles S. Duncan, Esq., of Gettysburg, represented the Abbottstown man.

36 BODIES ARE FOUND

SMOOT TO FIGHT SENATE CHANGE

Will Contest Corporation Levy Modification and Wire Tax Repeal.

Washington, April 29.—Modification of the corporation tax and repeal of the tax on telegraph and telephone messages was voted Monday by the Senate in advancing consideration of the Revenue bill. Notice was given, however, that contests would be made later on both of these levies.

The corporation tax was increased from 12½ to 14 per cent with the understanding that the capital stock tax would be eliminated. This latter amendment is yet to be acted upon.

Minority Plans Graduated Scale

Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, ranking Democrat on the Finance Committee, announced that minority members were drafting a substitute amendment, proposing to replace the present corporation tax with one carrying a graduated scale.

Pending the writing of this amendment, Senator Simmons said he would ask for postponement of consideration of the income tax rate section, over which the main contest on the bill will center. These rates were reached Monday, but were passed over at the request of the North Carolina Senator.

In voting for th repeal of the tax on telegraph and telephone messages the Senate rejected the recommendation of the Finance Committee. Repeal of this tax had been suggested by Secretary Mellon and was voted by the House. Chairman Smoot, of the Finance Committee, announced he would ask for a record vote on it later.

BELGIUM AGREES WITH PARIS PLAN

Reaches Accord With French on Application of Penalties on Default.

Paris, April 29.—France and Belgium Monday reached a complete accord on the course to be taken by the two Governments as their part in putting the reparation experts' recommendations into effect.

As a result of Monday's decision, taken at a conference between Premier Theunis and Foreign Minister Hymans, of Belgium, and Premier Poincare, of France, the two Governments will separately endeavor to reach a similar agreement with Great Britain, after which the final untangling of the reparation snarl will be attempted in a general Allied conference.

Question of Pressure Discussed

At the conference the whole question of pressure on Germany, the results obtained from the occupation of the Ruhr and the proper form of the eventual penalties to be applied to Germany in the case of default in the execution of the experts' plan was canvassed in its military, political and financial aspects with Marshal Foch, Paul Tirard, president of the International Rhineland Commission, and M. Franco-Marsal, French Finance Minister, participating as counselors.

The rapidity with which the accord was reached was taken in political circles as indicating that the Belgians had agreed with Premier Poincare that some plan for the eventual application of penalties must be adopted before the Allies could abandon the pledges held in the Ruhr.

The next stride in the move toward a general settlement will be taken next Friday, when Premier Theunis and M. Hymans will go to London to confer with Prime Minister MacDonald, of Great Britain.

EAST PROSPECT BANK OPENS AT USUAL TIME

The East Prospect State bank, in York county, was doing business as usual Monday following published reports of an alleged misapplication of funds of the bank as the result of an alleged conspiracy between the cashier, E. L. Burg, now dismissed, and Roy J. Sitler, a depositor of the bank, who is a merchant in East Prospect. Burg is charged with allowing Sitler to overdraw his account to the extent of $23,000.

Burg, after his arrest Sunday night, was committed to jail, while Sitler was able to furnish bail. Monday morning several friends, Birchard M. Hannigan and Paul E. Dellinger, came to Burg's aid and furnished bail for his appearance for hearing. Now both men are at liberty on $15,000 bail each.

HEARING IS POSTPONED ON FREIGHT BUS LINE

Public Service Commission Delays Action on Application for Operation of Motor Service.

Argument on the application of the Gettysburg transfer for certificates of public convenience to operate a motor frieght line between Harrisburg and Gettysburg and between Mechanicsburg and Shepherdstown, scheduled to be held before the Public Service Commission in Harrisburg Monday, was postponed. Chairman Ainey will fix a later date.

Several protests have been filed against this application by the Pennsylvania Railroad, the Reading and the American Railway Express.

Argument was heard Monday afternoon before the Commission in the application of the Southeastern Express Company for authority to abandon its office at Woodbine, York county. It is asserted that the company does not do sufficient business at that station to warrant the maintaining of an office.

GOV. M'CRAY USED MAILS IN FRAUD

Indiana Governor Convicted by Jury in U. S. Court in 10 Minutes.

WILL SOON BE SENTENCED

Maximum Penalty Is Five Years' Imprisonment and Fine of $1,000; 150 Witnesses Heard.

Indianapolis, Ind., April 29.—Governor Warren T. McCray was found guilty of using the mails in furtherance of a scheme to defraud by a jury in Federal Court at 6.30 P. M. Monday. The case was given to the jury at 6.20.

Judge Anderson ordered McCray sent to the Marion County Jail. He will sentence the Governor at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Appeal Is Doubtful

When M. A. Ryan, one of the Governor's attorneys, was asked regarding an appeal he said: "We don't know. We are not sure. But my guess would be no."

The penalty provided by statute may be a fine of not to exceed $1,000 or imprisonment for not more than five years, or both, within the discretion of the court

Governor McCray's trial started in United States District Court before Judge Albert B. Anderson April 21.

150 Witnesses Heard

Approximately 150 witnesses, most of them bankers and McCray employes and business associates, were called by the Government. They identified a mass of correspondence with the Governor regarding notes, "cattle paper," and financial statements sent the banks through the mails.

Attorneys for the Governor based their defense on lack of intent to defraud. Governor McCray, testifying in his own behalf, admitted signing the names of others to notes, but contended his signature as endorser established his responsibility and he believed himself able financially to meet all of his obligations. He disclaimed any intention of attempting to defraud bankers to whom he sold the notes.

An indictment against McCray charging violation of the National banking laws and conspiracy to violate the national banking laws still is pending in the Federal Court.

Admos D. Morris, former cashier of the Discount and Deposit State Bank, of Kentland, of which Governor McCray was president until his financial collapse, was named jointly with the Governor on the conspiracy charge, and pleaded guilty. He has not been sentenced.

The reports of a Federal master in chancery, who conducted a hearing on the petition of three Fort Wayne banks to have the Governor adjudged a bankrupt, are still in the hands of Judge Anderson.

Beside the Federal indictments, McCray was named in 15 true bills returned by the Marion county grand jury. The Governor's trial on the first of these resulted recently in a disagreement of the jury.

Lions. Wives and lady friends of the Lions will accompany the Lions to the services.

Dr. Crist To Lead Players

Dr. C. G. Crist was named manager of the Lions' baseball team, after a challenge from the Gettysburg Rotary Club for a game had been read. Dr. Crist will call together his players shortly and promises to whip a team into shape within a few weeks to trounce the Rotarians' nine.

Boys' Work Committee

A committee consisting of I. L. Taylor, William G. Weaver, N. L. Horn and J. Harold Mumper was appointed on boys' work in Gettysburg. This committee will meet with a similar committee from the Rotary Club to plan for joint action in boys' activities in the two organizations. Steps have already been taken by the Rotary Club's boys' work committee in the direction of assisting Boy Scouts of Gettysburg, it was stated.

Report On Lancaster Trip

William G. Weaver and Henry Scharf, who recently represented the Gettysburg Lions' Club at the anniversary night banquet and dance of the Lancaster Lions' Club, reported on that affair.

MANY PARENTS JOIN PENN STATE GROUP

State College, Pa.—More than 1000 parents of students enrolled at the Pennsylvania State College have joined the Association of Parents of Penn State and twice that many are expected when the annual meeting is called on the morning of May 3, the annual "Fathers' Day" celebration at Penn State.

The organization of local county units of the Parents' Association was urged by Dr. John M. Thomas, president of the college, in his letter of invitation to more than 3000 fathers to attend the outing on the campus. In several counties fathers of students have offered aid in local organization work, and this phase is expected to boom during the next year. This Penn State parent group is the first of its kind organized in this country and the coming meeting will be the third annual for the association.

100,000 ATTEND MURPHY FUNERAL

Silence of Throng Dominant Note of Demonstration For Tammany Chief.

New York, April 29.—One hundred thousand persons, high and low, rich and poor, Monday paid their tribute of respect to Charles F. Murphy, for two decades chieftain of Tammany Hall. Not in many years has the metropolis witnessed a funeral of such magnitude.

The impressive silence of the immense throng was the dominant note. Early in the morning such a crowd had gathered in front of his modest old-fashioned home in East Seventeenth street that 100 policemen were necessary to keep the people moving.

Steady Stream Passes Bier

For hours there was a steady stream of men, women and children—the majority from the lower East Side—into the parlor where the body lay. Laborers, with lunch boxes under their arms, shop girls, silk-hatted dignitaries and women in costly gowns knelt for a moment of silent prayer before the coffin.

When the body was taken to stately St. Patrick's Cathedral on Fifth avenue, the cortege passed through streets packed with people, with heads bared. Here and there the silence was broken by the sobbing of a woman.

8,000 Crowd Into Cathedral

More than 8,000 persons crowded into the Cathedral where Bishop John J. Dunn celebrated the solemn high mass of requiem. Outside the edifice, ,000 persons bowed their heads while the ceremonies were in progress.

THAW, PRISONER, ROAMS THE TOWN

Motors With Party to Roadhouse, Though Technically Not Free.

Philadelphia, April 29.—Harry K. Thaw may be still an inmate of the Pennsylvania Hospital for Mental and Nervous Diseases, but this does not mean that his movements are greatly hampered.

Sunday night he and several companions motored to the Three Tuns Inn at Ambler and had dinner. They stayed for a while enjoying the fun and then drove off.

Monday afternoon he strolled down Broad street, but, despite all the recent publicity, nobody appeared to recognize him. He and his personal secretary, Harry J. Rice, walked to Spruce street and then turned into a fashionable apartment house near Broad and Spruce.

They stayed in the apartment house more than an hour and then strolled out. From there they visited the offices of Thaw's physician, Dr. Elwood Kirby.

Earlier in the day Thaw had visited his attorney, former Judge John M. Patterson, and had discussed various phases of his case. Judge Patterson said that although no court furlough had been granted Thaw, he had permission to visit around town as long as an asylum guard is with him.

The judge intimated that this arrangement was comparatively satisfactory to his client and that he would not bother pressing for a furlough until the trial pudges have an opportunity to rule as to whether a new trial shall be granted.

"The man has been declared sane and is entitled to his liberty," said the judge, "but the present arrangement will do for a few days."

It could not be ascertained whom Thaw visited at the apartment house and he refused to discuss the matter himself. The management of the building, however, was emphatic in denying that Thaw had taken an apartment there.

ADD THIRTY NEW MEMBERS TO STATE MOTOR PATROL

Thirty new members of the State Motor Patrol finished their course in training Monday, took their oaths, and began duty on the roads. The total number of patrolmen is now 111.

In a bulletin issued Monday to members of the patrol, Registrar Ben G. Eynon, of the automobile division of the State Highway Department, commented upon complaints that patrolmen have been making a practice of stopping examining applicants for drivers' license at 4 o'clock, regardless of how long the applicant may have been waiting in line for the examination. Eynon ordered patrolmen to examine all applicants who reach the examining point by 4 o'clock.

"One of the first duties of the motor patrol is to render services to the public and use reasonable judgment, and if persons are waiting at 4 o'clock to be examined I see no reason why patrolmen cannot take a few extra minutes and examine them," said Registrar Eynon in a bulletin to members of the patrol. "In some sections of the State the particular day on which you are examining may be the only day on which the applicant can be examined during the thirty-day period of his learner's permit. He must receive that consideration which patrolmen would expect were they placed in a similar position."

14 KNOWN DEAD OF 114 BURIED

Rescue Workers Convinced All Perished in Mine Explosion Near Wheeling.

HAD ONE BLAST BEFORE

Small Explosion Two Months Ago Led to Precautions Being Taken; Inspections Indicated Diggings Were Safe.

Wheeling, W. Va., April 29.—Fourteen bodies had been recovered Monday night from the Benwood mine of the Wheeling Steel corporation, where 114 miners were entombed Monday by an explosion. Eleven bodies were found by rescue workers in the Brown's run air shaft, and three in the main passageway.

One of the dead miners was identified as George Holliday, Jr., son of the superintendent of the mine. Superintendent Holliday said a check disclosed 114 miners were in the mine when the explosion occurred.

Hope Abandoned

Hope that any of the 100 unaccounted for may be found alive virtually has been abandoned.

I. M. Scott, president of the Wheeling Steel Corporation, said that, although the mine was an old working, no evidence of gas had been found until two months ago. A small explosion occurred then, he said, but an airshaft was sunk immediately and work had progressed without difficulty. Mr. Scott was unable to explain Monday's explosion.

Experts said that, if any of the entombed men escaped being killed outrght and had time to barricade themselves in rooms filled with fresh air, some of them may be found alive.

Rescuers Toil On

Upon that possibility rescue crews worked in short shifts throughout the day and night, but had not reached the spot where the explosion occurred.

The body of J. T. Poyle, the fire boss, is among those brought out. His bulletin board at the mouth of the mine showed that he had inspected the mine and pronounced it safe before the day-light shift went to work.

A temporary morgue has been established at the mouth of the mine at Benwood. Physicians and nurses stand ready to aid any who are rescued.

Men Had Just Gone To Work

Fifteen minutes after the day force had been in the mine people were startled by a violent quake and a distant rumble. All knew what had happened. Men, women and children dashed to the mine mouth. They found the entry blocked by a cave-in, and through this mass of rocks and earth drifted smoke and gases.

The man-power of the region was massed at the mine while awaiting arrival of the rescue car. Volunteer crews dug frantically at the blocked entries, while others rushed to the air shafts, back in the country, in the hope that they could get into the workings. Through these air shafts the first rescuers entered the workings.

Perish Near Mouth

Two of the known dead had been overtaken within a few hundred feet of the mouth. They were still breathing faintly when found, but died before they could be borne out.

The explosion tore away heavy ties used over the entrance of the mine. The concussion, mine rescue officials said, would have been sufficient to kill most of the miners inside.

After penetrating 3,000 feet through the debris the rescue crews encountered a complete blockade in the main passageway late in the day. Similar difficulties were met in penetrating Brown's Run air shaft, but the work there was pushed with vigor.

Soon after the explosion four automobiles carrying rescue crews were sent from the mine office to the Brown's Run entrance, but all the cars were wrecked on curves along the road. No one was injured.

7 DRIVERS LOSE LICENSES; 24 NAMES ON BLACKLIST

Licenses of seven automobile drivers were revoked and twenty-four names were placed on the blacklist for refusal of license during the past week, the State Highway Department announced Monday.

Five of the seven revocations and sixteen of the blacklistings were for driving while intoxicated; three additional blacklistings being for transporting liquor. None are from Adams county.

One license was revoked for failure to stop, revocation coming after report by a motor patrolman. Another license was revoked for assault and battery, the first information coming from a newspaper clipping.

Chicago, April 29.—Two men are dead and 7 others wounded as a result of a mysterious shooting at a labor union ball last night, believed by authorities to have been caused by a factional controversy.

ADAMS COUNTY MAN LEADS STATE IN EGG PRODUCTION

State College, April 29.—Some excellent egg production records were made by Pennsylvania flocks during March according to announcements today from the Pennsylvania State College agricultural extension division whose poultry specialists aid poultrymen with their flock management.

High flocks are given for three classes. In the class for flocks containing over 100 pullets, W. H. O'Neill, of Honesdale, leads with an average production of 22.7 eggs per bird for the month. A flock of White Leghorns ranked first in the class for flocks of over fifty hens with a production of 26.3 eggs per bird and belonged to W. V. Howard, of Mehoopany. In flocks of over 100 hens and pullets, the Black Minorca birds belonging to C. M. Weikert, of Littlestown, led the field with an average of twenty-three eggs per bird for the month.

ROAD IN GOOD SHAPE

Lincoln Highway Association Informs Motorists of Condition of Road.

The Lincoln Highway Association, in its first report for the 1924 season, just made public, publishes an authentic account of the condition of the famous highway from one coast to the other. This report will be published for the benefit of motorists using the Lincoln Highway until November 15, it is stated.

Division Two, of the Highway, from Philadelphia to Chambersburg, by way of Gettysburg, is listed as being in excellent condition, with no detours except short stretches around new construction in the 15 miles east of Coatesville. The warning is issued, "Be careful of speed; route across State is patrolled by State police."

DOG SAVES FAMILY WHEN HOUSE BURNS TO GROUND

(By Associated Press.)

Lamberton, N. Y., April 29.—The lives of 8 persons were saved by a collie dog when the farm house of L. S. Morrison burned to the ground early today. The dog sacrificed his own life.

Morrison was awakened by the dog's tugging at the bedclothes to find the house in flames. With the help of his wife and his cousin he carried five children, ranging in age from 3 to 9 years, to safety. Two of them had been overcome by smoke.

When the embers cooled, the body of the dog was found buried in the debris.

JOSEPH GREER and His DAUGHTER

by HENRY KITCHELL WEBSTER

COPYRIGHT by The BOBBS-MERRILL CO.

She couldn't have said just what it was that made her uneasy, but her pitiless young eyes saw, beneath Margaret's surface suavity, something haggard. It betrayed itself in the corners of her eyelids and in the tightness of her throat-muscles. It could be heard, sometimes, in the wire edge of a word—addressed, usually, to her brother, or when, with what was meant to sound like pure good humor, she told stories at his expense. She was old and tired and, for some reason only to be guessed, not far from desperate.

But, all the more for that, she was formidable. Over the cocktails in the drawing-room she had addressed her host as Joe, but without—quite—Jennie MacArthur's unconsciousness. A gleam in his eye told the girl, too, that he had noted it, with interest and perhaps with pleasure. So it must have been the first time. The woman hadn't done it idly; nothing she did was idle.

Beatrice contented herself with a single sip at her glass; then carried it over to her father. "I ought to have done this, last time," she admitted, confidentially, and he squeezed her arm in approval. But when Margaret took a cigarette she helped herself to one also. She'd had a fortnight of assiduous practice and decided she could safely venture. He laughed at this bit of bravado, but didn't seem displeased. She felt it was a good beginning; her father's darling and the complete hostess were the two fronts she wished to present—a double warning to trespassers.

And as the evening advanced she gained confidence that she was succeeding with both. She sat very straight, in the high-backed armchair which faced her father's, and felt herself satisfactorily in the part. (The movies have their uses, after all. She'd learned a lot from Pauline Frederick and Elsie Ferguson.) Anson fortified her somehow; it was the first time she'd felt him clearly as an ally. But the great thing was her father's look. Something came into it, whenever he turned it upon her, that quickened her heartbeat. As long as he went on looking at her like that she was in no danger from anybody.

Their hour in the drawing-room after dinner was really rather jolly, and one of her few conversational ventures, made in the course of it, proved a distinct success. Miss Craven had been admiring the big Sorolla, when Beatrice asked, "Did you ever hear of a painter named Carmichael Blair?"

They'd all heard of him, it seemed. He'd had a show, only a few months earlier, at the Institute. But why had she asked?

"Some of his pictures are a little like that, I think," she said. "They—sort of sing, just like that does."

In that moment she decided that, without reserve, she liked Henry Craven, just for the way his face lighted up over that remark. "You're perfectly right," he told her; "there's a real resemblance in just that quality." He added, "Blair lived out in California for a while, didn't he?"

She nodded. "He tried to teach me to paint once. But I wasn't much good at it." She had the satisfaction of feeling that she'd said that exactly right.

So the evening summed up to a real success. Her comments on their guests, after they'd gone, were enthusiastic; genuine, as they concerned Henry, and so nearly in the same tone as they concerned Margaret that she didn't believe her father could tell the difference.

But the little lunch Margaret had for her, a week later, didn't go off as well, and she came home from it depressed, vaguely resentful, and with her first misgiving of the woman's design upon her father wide-awake again.

Margaret's flat had been a shock to her. She'd assumed that these people were rich. She wondered, uneasily, if her father had been taken in. Beatrice was the first of the guests to arrive, and during those first few minutes while they were alone she had the uncomfortable sense of being under examination, on trial—to have it decided whether she would do! The questions themselves were friendly enough. How did she amuse herself during the long hours her father spent at the office? (Margaret knew how long they were, because of her brother.) Had she any trouble finding her way about? Had she been shopping? Margaret would go with her if she liked, almost any day, and show her where—well, the right sort of things were to be found. One could waste a lot of time—as well as a lot of money—in a strange city making all those discoveries for oneself. No, there was no harm in the questions—only the girl's answers seemed, always, somehow, to give her away.

The arrival of the other guests didn't improve matters either. There were only two of them (it wasn't a party, Margaret explained), young girls of about her own age. After the buzzer had announced them in the vestibule, her hostess told her, swiftly, who they were. One was Dorothy Williamson, whose father had gone in with hers in the new flax business. She had got back, only the week before, from her school, Thornycroft, in the East. The other was her particular friend, Sylvia Stannard.

When a telephone call took their hostess out of the room, for quite a long while, the vacuum got higher than ever. They didn't talk about men at all even with this opportunity, and Beatrice's attempt to introduce the topic was, as her instinct had warned her it would be, a blank failure.

"I think Henry Craven's a peach!" Beatrice had volunteered, apropos of something that had been said about Margaret. "I had a lot of fun with him at dinner the other night." Then, uneasily aware that both the other girls were looking a bit blank, she added, "You know him, don't you?"

"Rather!" the Williamson girl answered. "He's my cousin. Yes, he's a lamb."

Beatrice flushed and looked away; it was as if a door had been shut in her face.

There broke over Beatrice a wave of something like homesickness. Home had never been a place she'd consciously loved. She'd never found much sympathy or security in it; nor anything better than meager and unsatisfying spiritual fare in the world that surrounded it. But its inhabitants and their codes and standards were, after all, familiar and intelligible to her. These people were aliens. They left her out, not so much from malice as from the lack of any connective medium. She glanced round, desperately, at the clock; it would be almost an hour before Burns would call for her with the car. Luckily, the other guests went earlier, and she experienced a certain relief at being left alone with Miss Craven.

Just as she was leaving, an invitation for a visit to the Cape Cod cottage was extended in a way to show that it was meant and must be, in some fashion, dealt with.

"He's My Cousin. Yes, He's a Lamb."

"Why, it's frightfully kind of you," Beatrice said. "I don't think father means me to go away again as soon as this— I've just come, you see. But I'll speak to him about it."

"Do!" said Margaret. "If he's going to be away himself any time this summer, up in the Northwest where they're building their flax factories, it might just fit in."

Beatrice awaited his return from the office that evening with an emotion that was more filial and domestic than anything she had felt toward him before. She'd hoped he would be early—something he'd said that morning had led her to think he might be—but the better part of an hour passed before she heard Anson letting him in, and by then she was on the verge of tears. Unluckily, too, he came to her full of something of his own. He was very jovial about it, whatever it was, and the hug and kiss he gave her, though vigorous and enthusiastic, lacked the tenderness she, for the first time, wanted. She released herself with a movement of petulance which caught his attention.

"What's the matter with you?" he asked. "Getting lonesome?

"I'll make it up to you now, though," he went on. "What can you think of that it would be fun to do? I guess we've seen most of the shows, but if you want to repeat on any of them, I'm game. And there's still time to go downtown to dinner. We won't stop to dress; you look great just as you are."

"You hate that red dress of mine—I know you do," she said. "I guess you're ashamed of me in it." Her voice broke over that and betrayed the fact that she was crying.

There was a long moment before he made any response at all. She had a sense of him, for she didn't turn to look, standing unnaturally still and not looking at her. Then, without warning, for he moved lightly and the rugs were soft, she felt his hands upon her. Of her weak resistance and her broken, "No, let me alone," he took no account at all, but picked her up bodily, carried her to his special big chair, and sat down in it with her in his lap.

"Put your head down," he said, in his vibrant voice, "and cry as long as you like. And then, when you're ready, tell me all about it."

She didn't want to cry any more—indeed, surprised at being taken up like that had checked her tears—but neither did she want to talk. She had, for just that moment, no sense of grievance, against him or against the world. Everything else was swallowed up in the sensation of his comprehensive embrace; nothing even remotely like that had, in the whole length of her memory, happened to her before. This didn't last long. Her consciousness, so deeply submerged in this new element, came floating to the surface again. She was aware of the prickle of his beard upon her wet face; she wondered if he was smiling.

"I expect it's just lonesomeness that made you feel that way," he said, and she noted, even then, something forced in his tone of reassurance, as if he were managing a small child. "You've been sitting around by yourself all day, with nothing to do and nobody to talk to. We'll have to tackle that problem somehow."

She told him, without raising her head, that this was a bad guess. It hadn't been an unoccupied day at all. She'd gone to a party.

lished at schools as small as Gettysburg.

Major Nixon is an active member of the Gettysburg Rotary Club.

Before leaving for New York on Monday, the retiring officer accepted the rank of colonel of infantry in the 79th Division, on inactive duty. He was given the colonelcy by Captain S. C. Thompson, junior officer of the College R. O. T. C.

It is believed that Captain Thompson will be the only officer at College for the remainder of the present collegiate year. The size of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps unit next fall will determine whether the College is to have two commissioned officers or only one, it is stated.

Major Nixon expects to leave his family here for a month after he leaves Gettysburg, which will be about the first of May.

FARM CALENDAR

Timely Reminders From The Pennsylvania State College.

Covering the Garden Seed—Very often vegetable seeds are covered with too much dirt when planted. Celery and lettuce should be covered very lightly, about one-eighth inch. Beets, carrots, radishes, spinach, and onion seed can be planted to the depth of about one-half inch, with early peas two inches and beans one inch.

Cooling Milk—It is none too early to begin to think about cooling the milk. Some sort of a cooler or cooling tank should be provided to cool the milk to 50 degrees.

Spontaneous Combustion—When painting this spring, be sure to burn all rags which are soaked with linseed oil and turpentine. They may cause fire from spontaneous combustion. Don't store paint materials in the cellar. The fire risk is great.

Clean Up Week—May 5 to 10 has been designated at "Clean Up Week" for wheat farmers in Pennsylvania. The clean up is directed against the angoumois grain moth which destroyed five million bushels of wheat in 24 counties last year. Every farmer in the section infested with this pest should rout the moth from its winter hiding place by doing a thorough job of barn cleaning before May 10.

The Apple Red Bug—Do not put nicotine in the pink spray as it does not hit the apple red bug. Extension specialists are advising putting the nicotine in the "petal fall" spray to control this pest.

EUROPE'S QUICK ACTION IS VITAL

Dawes and Assistants, Back From Abroad, Urge Haste in Settlements.

New York, April 29.—Charles G. Dawes, of Chicago; Owen D. Young, of New York, and Henry M. Robinson, of Los Angeles, authors of the Reparation Commission's latest plan for the restabilization of Europe, arrived on the Leviathan Monday, convinced that early adoption of their program was imperative.

"We must cease talking about responsibility for the war," said one of the trio. "We must consider it as a calamity that has occurred and one that all who participated in must help pay for. Germany, as well as the Allies, must pay her share. Everybody must get together and discharge the debt burdens incurred during the war or we'll go broke together."

Young Delegated As Spokesman

Mr. Dawes and Mr. Robinson declined to discuss any subject, however remote, upon the reparation plan. They insisted that expression of their views be confined to a statement prepared before the Leviathan reached quarantine. They delegated to Mr. Young, whom Mr. Dawes described as "the constructive brains of our committee," the duty of answering questions.

Mr. Young did so, freely, but with the understanding that he was not to be interpreted as seeking to add any new ideas to the so-called Dawes report; that he might, however, clothe some of its provisions in workaday terms.

Two Factors As To Time

To the question how long it would be—if the plan were approved by the Allies and Germany—before it could come operative and its predicted beneficial results to world economic conditions become effective, he said

It depended upon how promptly the Reichstag passed enabling legislation, and how promptly the Reparation Commission, or whoever was delegated, nominated personnel for executing the plan.

Big Issue In Elections

Mr. Young declared the plan probably would be "a very large issue" in the impending German and French elections.

Concerning the possibilities of floating the proposed $200,000,000 loan for Germany, he said America should handle $100,000,000 of that amount; that England would be good for $75,000,000 and nations of continental Europe for the remaining $25,000,000.

Mr. Young hesitated to discuss the prospect that the plan might fail of general adoption.

MRS. W. J. BRYAN FOLLOWS HEALER

Wife of Commoner Says He Will Join Her at Evangelist's Altar.

Hazlehurst, Ga., April 29.—Mrs. William Jennings Bryan, wife of the commoner, has followed a faith healer from Bradentown, Fla., to his south Georgia village in an effort to be cured.

The revivalist-healer is the Rev. Raymond T. Richey, who tells all who have faith that they have a chance to be cured of their physical ills. Monday afternoon and night there were immense congregations to hear him, and the most conspicuous figure in the entire assemblage was Mrs. Bryan, who sat in an invalid's chair. Mrs. Bryan could not go to the altar because of her inability to leave her chair, so Mr. Richey went down to her and talked with her for some time about the faith that heals.

"I believe in divine healing," she said, "and I am sure when my faith is great enough I shall be healed."

She already is able to move one of her arms slightly, and told newspaper men Monday, something she was not able to do before accepting the faith in divine healing. Mrs. Bryan says she is to be joined in a few days by her husband.

"We shall both remain here in an effort to bring about relief to me," she said. "We are both believers in the power of the Divine to heal."

Safe Fat Reduction

Reduce, reduce, reduce, is the slogan of all fat people. Get thin, be slim, is the cry of fashion and society. And the overfat wring their hands in mortification and helplessness; revolting at nauseating drugs, afraid of violent excise, dreading the unwelcome and unsatisfying diet, until they hit upon the harmless Marmola Prescription and learn through it that they may safely reduce steadily and easily without one change in their mode of life, but harmlessly, secretly, and quickly reaching their ideal of figure, with a smoother skin, better appetite and health than they have ever known. And now comes Marmola Prescription Tablets from the same famously harmless formula as the Marmola Prescription. It behooves you to learn the satisfactory, beneficial effects of this great, safe, fat reducer by giving to your druggist one dollar for a box, or sending a like amount to the Marmola Company, 4612 Woodward Avenue, Detroit, Mich., with a request that they mail to you a box of Marmola Prescription Tablets.—adv.

Tells Sufferers How to End Piles Forever

Rochester Doctor Achieves Remarkable Success With New Prescription. Must Give Absolute Relief or Money Back.

It has remained for a well known Rochester doctor to find a real remedy for Piles. Years of patient, painstaking effort on his part has resulted in a prescription that will actually heal Piles and absorb them never to return.

This doctor says no man or woman need suffer another hour from any pain arising from Hemorrhoids or Piles now that he has made arrangements with People's Drug Store to dispense this wonderful prescription known as MOAVA SUPPOSITORIES for a moderate price on the money back if dissatisfied plan.

You'll be amazed to see how quickly it acts. Blessed relief often comes in an hour; even in cases of long standing with profuse bleeding really wonderful results have been accomplished. —adv.

WHO WOULD DO IT NOW?

New ideas and modern examples are frequently less worth while than old ones.

In some departments of thinking and acting there has been an advance in the last two thousand years.

Socrates, great philosopher of Greece, lived long before the Christian era.

Like many another good man in the world's history, he was finally condemned to death. (Many have only been condemned to death by opinion, but it amounts to the same thing.)

After the sentence of Socrates his friends told him that by questionable means a pardon might be had. The reply of Socrates comes as a jolt in these law-lax days. He said:

"It is better that I should die than the laws of Athens be broken."

Who is there of us today who cares so much about the preservation of the laws of this nation?

Col. Markey To Sail

FREDERICK—Col. D. John Markey, this city, member of the American Battle Monuments Commission appointed by the late President Harding for the inspection of all American battlefields in Italy, France and Belgium, together with American cemeteries in England and Scotland, will sail for Europe on June 14, according to a Baltimore dispatch. In the absence of Col. Markey, who is Department Commander of the American Legion, of Maryland, the executive headquarters of the Legion will be moved to Baltimore, it is understood. Major Herbert L. Grymes, Vice-Commander, will assume charge of the affairs of the Legion. Incidentally, it is believed that Major Grymes, who is a judge of the People's Court of Baltimore City, will be groomed for the State Commandership during Col. Markey's absence, the dispatch stated. The new Commander will be elected at the State Convention to be held at Havre de Grace, August 21, 22 and 23, while Col. Markey is abroad.

Man Who Fell Better

FREDERICK—John Sheffield, carpenter, who was rendered unconscious by a fall from a ladder in the Frederick county jail yard Thursday morning, while doing repair work, is progressng nicely at his home on East Second street. Dr. J. O. Hendrix, his physician, stated that, while the man was considerably bruised and had a very narrow escape from serious injury, still no bones were broken. Sheffield was found lying at the foot of the ladder on which he had been at work placing glass in some top windows of the jail, by Turnkey Kolb. Being in a semi-conscious condition he was taken to his home by John Mehrling, West South street.

Bass Law Is Changed

FREDERICK—Lovers of bass fishing, of whom there are many in the city and county, will have to wait an additional month this year and hereafter before they can legally go out with rod, hook and line and angle for this species of finny brethren. An announcement by State Game Warden E. Lee LeCompte states that the season will open here after on July 1, and will close on December 1. The trout fishing season opened on April 1 and will close July 1. The new law, Mr. LeCompte said, applies to all sections above tidewater.

Motorcyclist Is Killed

HAGERSTOWN.—Losing control of the motorcycle on which he was riding at the junction of the Sharpsburg and Lappans pikes Sunday evening at 5:30 o'clock, Harry Koontz, 20 years old, of near Sharpsburg, was thrown from the machine and suffered injuries which resulted in his death at the Washington County Hospital Sunday night. Koontz, according to persons said to have witnessed the accident, was driving toward Sharpsburg at a rapid rate of speed. Near the cross roads he lost control of the machine which plunged into a telephone pole at the side of the road. Koontz was hurled several feet into the air and fell, unconscious, to the ground. Passing motorists found the injured man and summoned Dr. Ira Zimmerman, of Fairplay. Dr. Zimmerman rendered first aid treatment and then brought Koontz to the Washington County Hospital. Koontz suffered a fractured skull and was injured internally. He died a short time after being admitted to the hospital.

Auto Driver Is Sought

HAGERSTOWN. — Police are searching for the driver of an automobile which early Sunday morning collided with the au[illegible]ile of Ellis Tate, taxi-driver, at the corner of Washington and Jonathan streets. Drivers of both cars escaped injury despite the facts that the cars overturned and were badly damaged. Investigation of the accident revealed that the car, whose driver is being sought, was owned by James Lewis, of this city. Lewis is said to have told the authorities that he and several other men attended a party in this city Saturday night. The party continued until early Sunday morning. When Lewis left the house where the party was held, his car, which had been parked in front of the place, was missing. He later learned, he said, that it had been taken by one of the men attending the party.

THE RULING PASSION

Oh, I would be a richer man with many a dime to spend
If I could but say "no" to them, who come with books to sell.
If I could send those men away, nor hear the things they have to say,
I'd some day be a man of wealth and not a ne'er-do-well.

The wife might have the dress she needs and many a stylish hat,
The children, too, might have the shoes they sadly need to wear,
If glib men did not come along and find me weak who would be strong
And bid me change my salary for volumes old and rare.

Some men have drunk their wages down and some with dice have gamed,
And some have flung their all before a woman's pretty looks;
But wine and game and women fair are not the things for which I care,
'Tis not to them my money goes,—my weakness is for books!

I hear the tempter's voice repeat the treasures I have coveted,
I view the plates he shows to me and wish that they were mine;
The vows I'd made I then forget, I can't resist just one more set,
Another agent has my name upon the dotted line!

Sometimes the drunkard will reform, the good wife oft declares,
Sometimes the gambler quits his dice, and righteous turn the crooks,
Sometimes love will bring back to you the fickle man and keep him true,
But no one ever saved the man whose passion runs to books.

SAILOR ON BOARD VESSEL IS GIRL

Stowaway Girl Worked As Man Until Wind Gives Her Away.

New York, April 29.—When the battleship Arizona left this port for the drill grounds in Southern waters five weeks ago there was on board a girl stowaway. The girl returned Monday.

How long she might have remained with the battleship is problematical, for she was in sailor rig when discovered on deck with others of the 1,800 men aboard the vessel.

Discovered At Last

She had eluded detection for weeks.

A gust of wind was her undoing—that and the presence of a visitor, Patrolman Charles Commanto, of this city, on vacation at Balboa, at the Pacific end of the Panama Canal.

He was watching a squad of sailors at work on deck. A riffle of wind swept the deck and took the cap from the head of one of the "men," disclosing a crown of tell-tale hair.

"Say, look," Commanto exclaimed to a friend, pointing to the "sailor."

"Thats not a bluejacket, that's a girl."

There wasn't any doubt about it, and soon the ship's officers had been notified. In short order the girl was sent by train to Cristobal. There she was placed aboard the steamship Cristobal, which arrived Monday. The girl and Commanto were on board.

The girl gave her name to the immigration authorities, as Madeline Blair. She is 19, black-haired and black-eyed. She was born at Irvington, N. J. She gave no address in New York.

Not Ready To Talk

"It's my adventure and my business, and you'll not get anything from me," she told reporters. To Commanto she said, "You need not tell my story. I'll tell it when I get ready."

Commanto told her she might be arrested as soon as she went ashore, but she flouted this and stalked off.

The girl was met by a man, said to be a detective from the Missing Persons Bureau; a young woman, believed to be her sister, and another woman, probably her mother. All went away in a taxicab.

VEGETABLE SPECIALIST TO AID FARM GARDEN WORK

State College, Pa.—Recognizing the importance of a garden as a source of income to the farmer, the agricultural extension department at the Pennsylvania State College has added to its staff a vegetable specialist who will devote his entire time to farm garden problems.

The new specialist, C. R. Mason, is an experienced gardener, coming to the college extension staff from his truck farm in Blair county. He is a graduate in agriculture at Penn State in 1917, took a year of advanced work in vegetable gardening at Purdue University in 1920, and then served three years in the horticultural department at Penn State.

POULTRYMEN FACE DIFFICULT PROBLEM

State College, Pa.—With the present downward trend of egg prices, poultry producers in Pennsylvania are striving for a low cost of production and are considering carefully the justification for expanding their flocks for the coming year.

In the United States on January first, there was 12 per cent more poultry than on January first, 1923. The production of eggs has increased 33.3 per cent from 1920 to 1923, while the population of the entire country has increased only 5.3 per cent. This means that consumption must be increased to meet the increase in production and that the poultryman must produce his eggs cheaper and more efficiently than in the past.

"Do not expand the flocks very much this year, particularly the lighter breeds," is the suggestion of M. H. Brightman of the poultry department at State College. "Cull early and closely, removing the poor producers at the earliest possible time. Do not employ more labor than is absolutely necessary and remember that, in order to 'stay in the game,' the poultryman must produce his eggs at the lowest cost and increase his production per bird."

The dressed poultry situation is slightly more favorable at present, Brightman believes, than the egg situation. The amount of dressed poultry in storage on March first was 17.6 per cent lower than for the same period last year. This gives a favorable outlook for the producers of the heavier breeds. "High quality products will stimulate the consumption of poultry and the flock," he declares. "Market the eggs at least weekly. Remove the males from the flock as soon as the breeding season is over. Sell only a clean and uniform product. The surest way to increase consumption is to improve the quality of the product."

THIS WOMAN'S MARVELLOUS RECOVERY

All Due to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Truman, Minn. —"I was badly rundown, had pains in my side and back; sometimes I could hardly move around in bed. My husband got me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and after taking it I was so much better I could do all my work again. I do my housework, have a garden, raise chickens, and in harvest time I worked in the field and helped pick corn. Sometimes I do chores and milk. I took the Vegetable Compound before and after my four-months-old baby was born, and it has always helped me wonderfully. I believe there is no better medicine made for women, and I hope every woman will give it a fair trial."—Mrs. AUGUST R. WIEDERHOFT, R. No. 2, Box 84, Truman, Minn.

Women suffering from troubles so common to their sex should give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

The Lydia E Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has relieved women of such troubles for the past fifty years. For sale by druggists everywhere.

JOLLY IRENE WEIGHS 620; SHE WELCOMES LEAP YEAR

Fat Lady Says She Is Going To Propose to Rubberneck Man.

By Steve Hannagan

New York.—"Thank goodness, leap year is here."

So sighed Jolly Irene, who weighs 620 pounds, has biceps three times as large as Jack Dempsey and who would be a total loss in a modelling contest.

"It may be that 'everybody loves a fat man,' as the sage commented, but I'll make the weighty statement that 'nobody loves a fat woman'—and I'm love starved," said she.

Jolly Irene, whose other name is Amanda Quinn, is Irish and looks it with a colleen smile grown in New Jersey and as infectious as the mosquitoes reared there.

She stands 5 feet 11 inches in her No. 5 shoes and is said to be the largest mobile woman in the world.

Irene is a jolly conversationalist—an interesting companion, and her interviewer told her so.

"Yes, but would you marry me?" she flung back.

I blushed my prettiest.

"That's just it," she said emphatically, "everybody thinks I'm dandy as a dainty juggernaut novelty—but as a life mate I'm as useless to them as an ordinary parlor chair is to me."

Out For A Husband

A settee or a divan large enough to accommodate three persons and having the tensile strength of the Woolworth Building is necessary when Irene parks in comfort.

"But I'm going to have a husband. Somebody nicknamed years that can be divided by four (like four guzinta 1924) as leap year. That's just what I'm going to do—'leap' onto a husband during these 12 months when women have the traditional right to pop the question to bashful suitors."

As a matter of fact Jolly Irene does have her moments. For instance, she can't get through subway turnstiles—they have to open the double gates for her; she can't go to the theater for it would take half a row of seats to seat her; when she goes into restaurants throngs storm the place and crowd to closely she can't eat; she can't be squeezed into any automobile smaller than a two-ton truck and a block and tackle is necessary to move her about in bed when she is ill.

Only the other day she sat in a dentist's chair and so snugly did her rolls of flesh drap around the corners of the chair it was necessary to take the chair apart to release her.

When she doubles her arm, it's a foot across. Imagine—a foot for an arm.

Daily she poses for the awed astonishment of the public at the Harlem Museum in 125th street between Lexington and Third avenues, of which Bill Griffin is manager.

She confided that she has tentatively chosen the man she will pursue during leap year.

Lucky Joe!

He's Joe Cramer "rubberneck gentleman of the museum," who can bring more neck from the hidden recesses of a chest than a giraffe. He has skin enough for two bodies and often uses part of the excess neck-covering to shield his face.

Whether or not Joe knows of the momentous romance about to fall on him, he must have a presentiment, for he rambled in his conversation about a recent trip to Honolulu, "where there is no high cost of living."

It may be only a coincidence, that when Jolly Irene gets a new dress it is just twice as large as the biggest stylish stout models in our very best stores.

But Irene, who says she is 25, is typically woman. She has used all the fancy weight-reducing exercises and compounds—and all to no avail.

She measures 79 inches around the waist. It required three tape lines to determine this.

Jolly Irene will be a big girl when she grows up.

BLIND MAN SAYS HE SEES BY SOUND

Baltimore, Md.—Harry Mozalous is blind.

Yet he can find a hole in a fence, detect trees and other obstacles in his path and locate buildings and their entrances.

He does it through his exaggerated sense of sound.

Mozalous, who is professor of music at Evergreen Institute for the Blind, here, lost his sight when he was a child.

"All I need is a quiet street and there is no danger of my missing anything," he smiled.

It is by the reflection of sound—echoes—that Mozalous sees objects by sound.

When he passes a hole in a fence he detects the absence of an echo in a certain area. If the fence were unbroken there would be an echo. Thus he discovers the hole.

These signs would not be recognized by one whose sense of hearing has not been developed to a point of super-acuteness, reached only by those who have lost one of the senses.

"Blind persons do not count their steps as many persons believe," said Mozalous. "They keep themselves on the right track by sound.

"When I come to a corner," he continued, "I know it by the draught of air that eddies past. It is easy to find a doorway because the echo from a door is different than the reflection of sound from a building wall. So with a tree, post or an approaching person."

Persons are recognized by their footsteps, said the blind music teacher.

Chats With Your Gas Man

Modern gas service isn't merely an idea, nor is it an accident. It is the result of four hundred years of engineering skill and research by men who visioned the day when people would get their heat through pipes and would cease to worry about coal, wood, soot, ashes and dirt.

Some of these early scientists were called idiots and one or two of them were hounded to death by their neighbors for trying to tame "a wild spirit," or control "the breath of the devil." But they kept on just the same, aided by others who backed them up with their savings.

And so it has been to this day—capital backing up science and engineering skill. What would the world be without such a combination?

RHEUMATISM
Leaves You Forever

Deep Seated Uric Acid Deposits Are Dissolved and the Rheumatic Poison Starts to Leave the System Within Twenty-four Hours.

Every Druggist in this county is authorized to say to every rheumatic sufferer that if a full pint bottle of Allenrhu, the sure conquerer of rheumatism, does not show the way to stop the agony, reduce swollen joints and do away with even the slightest twinge of rheumatic pain, he will gladly return your money without comment.

Allenrhu has been tried and tested for years, and really marvelous results have been accomplished in the most severe cases where the suffering and agony was intense and piteous and where the patient was helpless.

Mr. James H. Allen, of Rochester new York, the discoverer of Allenrhu, who for many years suffered the torments of acute rheumatism, desires all sufferers to know that he does not want a cent of anyone's money unless Allenrhu decisively conquers this worst of all diseases, and he has instructed druggists to guarantee it as above in every instance. People's Drug Store can supply you. —adv.

Dangerous Varicose Veins Can Be Reduced
